The Real Estate Forecast Summit is a quarterly series focusing on valuable insights in the industry. At each forecast summit, NAR's Chief Economist Dr. Lawrence Yun and the NAR research team are joined by a panel of expert economists and thought leaders — from government, private sector, think tanks, universities and more — to explore the most timely topics shaping the real estate market. From commercial to residential, and local to global, the Real Estate Forecast Summits are a critical source of insight on market expectations, risks, and growth opportunities.
