NAR’s Strategy Against DDT Patent Troll

Step One. Seek to invalidate the patent by filing an inter partes review with the U.S. Patent and Trademark office.
NAR’s Strategy Against DDT Patent Troll

Step One. Seek to invalidate the patent by filing an inter partes review with the U.S. Patent and Trademark office.

Step Two. Seek to invalidate the patent by filing a declaratory judgement lawsuit in federal court.
Property Disclosure Technologies (PDT)

U.S. Patent Nos. 6,529,908 (2009); 7,945,530 (2011); 8,630,974 (2014)

Patents broadly described as the process of compiling and categorizing property information, and providing a searchable property information website.
POI Search Solutions, LLC

System for identifying and displaying one or more points of interests within a specified region on a digital map.
NAR Resources

- NAR’s Government Affairs patent litigation reform efforts: http://www.realtor.org/topics/patent-litigation-reform
A special thanks goes to Rich Black and his team at the Foster Pepper law firm for their creativity and dedication in helping the real estate industry combat this patent troll.

http://www.foster.com/attorneys/richard-black