

New Jersey Association of REALTORS®

We have an issue going on in New Jersey that we know other states have been dealing with, or are likely to see in the future. At the end of 2015, our CEO and General Counsel testified before the NJ Real Estate Commission regarding the ability for real estate licensees to be independent contractors. If removed, the independent contractor status would have a large impact on several areas of business, including how agents do their jobs, how taxes are collected, and more.
