For over a hundred years, REALTORS® have promoted and protected the dream of property ownership for millions of Americans. In fact, the National Association of REALTORS® was founded by real estate practitioners determined to unite the profession with the singular goal of establishing high ethical standards to protect buyers and sellers.

Unquestioningly, a vibrant, professional, ethical real estate community is essential to safeguard wise stewardship of our nation’s land and resources. In 2013, REALTORS® will celebrate the centennial of the REALTORS® Code of Ethics and the comprehensive protections it provides.

When added to the Code in 1974, Article 10 mirrored federal fair housing and employment laws, including amendments incorporated in 1989. In 2010, REALTORS® moved beyond the existing federal classes, to ensure equal services without regard to sexual orientation. The Code’s Preamble tells REALTORS® and the public we serve “…the interests of the nation and its citizens require the highest and best use of the land and the widest distribution of land ownership” as well as “…the creation of adequate housing, the building of functioning cities, the development of productive industries and farms, and the preservation of a healthful environment.”

In addition to their work with local governments and their communities in creating housing opportunities, REALTORS®’ commitment to Article 10 and to fair housing ensures equal professional services for consumers and protects the dream of home ownership and diverse and thriving American communities. The Code’s Centennial is the perfect opportunity for REALTORS® to reaffirm their commitment to the honor, integrity and professionalism the Code demands.
